Concerning a New Confederacy.

The St. Louis Democrat says the idea of a Northwestern Confederacy is no novelty. It has long been a favorite threat with a certain class of Democratic leaders, and the very ones most deeply implicated by the revelations of recent date, that New England should be left out in the cold, and a reorganization of the Government should take place. The speeches of these parties furnish ample proof that the ilea of a new republic has been long favorably entertained by them. In revolutionary times like the present, it is easy to surmise how intimately the attempt in such a matter may follow the desire.

It may be a matter of surprise to the public to know how long the project of a Northwestern Confederacy has been the subject of discussion. A fact we have to mention in this connection may be of some interest now. In the spring of 1863more than one year ago-a book in favor of forming such a Republic was propared, and a few copies published in this State. The author was Lieutenant Colonel A. W. Woolfolk, of a Missouri State Militia regiment, and his volume bears the title of "A voice from the Camp." The book never reached the public, as it came under the notice of the military authorities, quence. What adds significance to the Nebruska, Wisconsin, and Dacotah.

It is unnecessary to recapitulate the various arguments urged in advocacy of the proposed republic, but the main idea was that the old Government was a failure, and it behooved each portion of the disrupted country to look out for itself. Abraham Lincoln had violated the Constitution | all the difficulties likely to be encountered it was claimed, and the moral obligation in the way of quicksands, under ground of the citizen to the organization of which he was the head, was accordingly dissolved. however, cherished the idea. "The first great advantage to Missouri and Kontucky from a Western Republic would consist in the universal harmony restored among their citizens. Were Missouri to become a part of the Southern Confederacy, one-half of its present population would abandon it, and it would require at least a generation to restore the State to its condition before the war. If the State remains with the North as one government, our Southern population would also emigrate, and the same results would follow. Thus to go either North or South makes us a border State, and robs us of about one half of our population.

"But if the Western Republic is estab lished, old issues will pass nway. The terms 'Union man', and 'Secessionists' would soon become obsolete, for the old Union would be gone, and in its place we would have a glorious young republic, free from debt, and with the finest rescources in the world. Soon our unrivaled prosperity would hush all regrets that we had abandoned a Union with New England, and the staunchest advocate of the Southern Confederacy would prefer to live in our Western Republic to sharing the immense war debt of the South."

Indeed that appears lately to have become the vital question with them. writer in the Examiner says:

"This monstrous and needless scale of prices must be a great encouragement to the enemy. He will say, as indeed will everybody, either there is an insufficiency of food in the country, or the people have no confidence in their money; either starvation is at hand or the currency is worthless. Nothing short of imminent starvation or utter failure of government credit can warrant such prices.'

The same paper of another date says "There is a subject of deep interest to the citizens of Richmond which demands the attention of the Council. The exorbitant prices demanded for all kinds of vegetables and other supplies in the markets are the subjects of serious consideration. How the middle and poor classes supply themselves with the necessaries of life is a wonder. It would seem that everything possible has peen done, as if with the express design to starve the people of Richmond.

The Colonel had been engaged in the mining business in his native State previous to the outbreak of the rebellion.

The work was commenced on the 25th of June last, as proviously stated. Such was the secresy with which it was conducted that for a long time the project was unknown even to those at whose side it was going on. It is true that reports were in circulation of a mine; but nobody could speak certainly of the matter. So much doubt was there, indeed, that for a time it was disbelieved that any such undertaking was on foot. One soldier in the breastworks, by whose side a ventilating shaft emerged, told his comrades in a most surprised manner that "there was a lot of fellows under him a doing something; he knew there was, for he could hear 'em talk." To gaurd against indiscretion on the part of the pickets, to prevent any meeting of our soldiers with the rebels whereat the secret of the mine might be beastingly or impradently disclosed, our pickets were ordered to fire continually. Hence the never-ending fusilade on the frontof the Ninth corps, so incomprehensible to the other corps, and which was often referred to by news paper paragraphs. The enemy, doubtless, suspected at first that the undermining was going on; but when several weeks How many valuable lives were thrown clapsed without any demonstration their away in the Crusades! , TUNNEL

The ventilation of the tunnel was most ingeniously effected. Just within our exterior line of works a shaft was sunk to the side of the tunnel, at its junction with which a fire-place was built, with a grating opening into the gallery. One end of place, where as the air became rarified and ascended, it created a "suction," or draft in the tubes connecting with the gallery. As fast as the tunnel progressed additional tubing was jointed on, and followed the workmen step by step. The smoke from the fire could not, of course, be concealed; but, to withdraw attention from it fires were kept burning at various points along the line. The lighting of the tunnel was effected simply by placing candles or lanterns along the walls at a distance of about twenty feet apart. At length the end was reached, the triaugulation was abundantly verified in the noises overhead. The nailing of timber and planks could be distinctly heard, and left no doubt that the men were directly beneath the Rebel fort. The enemy were evidently making a flooring for their artillery. As near y as could be ascertained, the distance from the tunnel to the fort was twenty feet,

After it was sufficiently evident that a point directly underneath the fort was reached the construction of the mine was commenced. The tubes extended only one hundred feet from the mine, thence they are connected with the mouth of the tunnel by fuses, the regular " sure fire," coal mining fuses of Pennsylvania being procured specially for the purpose.

The mine was charged to-day. The quantily of powder used was six tons! Pause, and think of it. Six tons! twelve thousand pounds. Imagine eight dry goods boxes (the magazines resemble them in size and shape) filled with powder, and you will have an idea of the mine. What a torrific spectacle is in store for us.

We take it for granted that Mr. Sloan will encounter no serious opposition in the Convention, and that he will be reslected there is no foundation for doubt.

Concerning a New Confederacy.

The St. Louis Democrat says the idea of a Northwestern Confederacy is no novelty. It has long been a favorite threat with a certain class of Democratic leaders, and the very ones most deeply implicated by the revelations of recent date, that New England should be left out in the cold, and a reorganization of the Government should take place. The speeches of these parties furnish ample proof that the ilea of a new republic has been long favorably entertained by them. In revolutionary times like the present, it is easy to surmise how intimately the attempt in such a marter may follow the desire.

public to know how long the project of a can warrant such prices. Northwestern Confederacy has been the subject of discussion. A fact we have to citizens of Richmond which demands the mention in this connection may be of some interest now. In the spring of 1863_ more than one year ago-a book in favor of forming such a Republic was prepared, and a few copies published in this State. The author was Lieutenant-Colonel A. W. Woolfolk, of a Missouri State Militia regiment, and his volume bears the title of "A voice from the Camp." The book never reached the public, as it came under the notice of the military authorities, and was suppressed before the publication was complete. Its author was arrested. and retired from military service in consequence. What adds significance to the facts we are stating is the position held by the Democrats have nominated David Turthe author of the book alluded to. Each Senate and Assembly District will be entitled to two delega as in said Convention.

Were Missouri to become a part of the Southern Confederacy, one-half of its present population would abandon it, and it would quire at least a generation to restore the State to its condition before the war. If the State remains with the North as one government, our Southern population would also emigrate, and the same results would follow. Thus to go either North or South makes us a border State, and robs us of about one half of our population.

The Republicans of Rock county, and all others who are in favor of suntaining the Nutional Administration in its aforts to suppress the redelliou, will meet in Couventien by their delegates, at the Court Room, in Myors Block, city of Juneavice, on Thursday, the 5th day of August, 1864, at 12 o'clock noon, to nominate candidates for County Officers.

The respective towns and wards will be entitled to delegates as follows:

The American Struggle.

[For the Guzette.] How many valuable lives were thrown away in the Crusades! Those expeditions filled out from the end of the 11th to the end of the 13th century, for the recovery of the "Holy Land." The Food Question in Richmond.—It is significant that the Richmond papers are deeply exercised concerning the food question. Indeed that appears lately to have become the vital question with them. A draft in the tubes connecting with the gal-writer in the Examiner says: prices must be a great encouragement to the enemy. He will say, as indeed will everybody, either there is an insufficiency of food in the country, or the people have "This monstrous and needless scale of no confidence in their money; either starvation is at hand or the currency is worther may follow the desire.

The distance between our front line and the nearest and most important rebel fort was over four hundred yards-too long to hope for success when ham Lincoln had violated the Constitution | all the difficulties likely to be encountered in the way of quicksands, under ground marshes and discovery by the enemy were taken into consideration. Col. Pleasants; bowever, cherished the idea. The rebel fort located temptingly up in front of his line, and, being a man of considerable natural energy and possessed of much practical experience in mining operations, and knowing that he would be ably supported by his regiment, which is wholly composed of miners from Schuylkill coun-"The first great advantage to Missouri with permission, commenced operations, and Kentucky from a Western Republic would consist in the universal harmony would be also as a second with the constant of the properties of the properties which we would be a second with the constant of the properties which we would be a second with the constant of the properties which we would be a second with the constant of the properties which we would be a second with the constant of the properties which we would be a second with the constant of the properties which we would be a second with the constant of the properties which we would be a second with the constant of the properties which we would be a second with the constant of the properties which we would be a second with the constant of the properties which we will be a second with the c ty, the coal region of Pennsylvania, he, ous to the outbreak of the rebellion.

The work was commenced on the 25th of June last, as previously stated. Such was the secresy with which it was conducted that for a long time the project was unknown even to those at whose side it was going on. It is true that reports were in circulation of a mine; but nobody could speak certainly of the matter. So much doubt was there, indeed, that for a time it was disbelieved that any such updertaking was on foot.

One soldier in the breastworks, by whose side a ventilating shaft emerged, told his comrades in a most surprised manner that "there was a lot of fellows under him a doing something; he knew there was, for he could hear 'em talk.' To gaurd against indiscretion on the part of the pickets, to prevent any meeting of our solliers with the rebels whereat the secret of the mine might be benstingly or impru-dently disclosed, our pickets were ordered to fire continually. Hence the never-ending fusilade on the front of the Ninth corps, so incomprehensible to the other corps, and which was often referred to by news paper paragraphs. The enemy, doubtless, suspected at first that the undermining was going on; but when several weeks elapsed without any demonstration their suspicions began to vanish, especially as their engineers must have thought the plan unfeasible.

PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The progress of the work was necessarily very slow : and it was not until the 25th instant-just one month after its inception —that it was completed. At the outset one of the most important points was to ascertain the exact distance and bearing of the rebel Forc. Working underground is literally working in the dark. By particular process of surveying called 'tri-angulation' these were arrived at. To be more explicit; distances were laid off upon the ground behind our works. From these lines as bases, and with the angles formed by lines extending in the direction of the fort, a simple geometrical problem was formed, the solution of which gave the required distance.

as its flukes were too broad to permit their swinging in the tunnel. This difficulty was overcome by filing down the flukes to the size of the regular mining pick. Water was met with not far from the entrance, and for a time gave no little trouble. The floor, however, was planked, and the side and ceiling shoved up.

A quicksand was met with, and, to obviate it, the range of the tunnel was curved upward, so that the latter half was several feet higher than at the entrance. The oozing of the water formed mud in several places, so that the regiment came from their daily labor bespattered and stained. In fact, it was easy during the past month to recognize a Forty-eighth man by his muddy boots. The earth, as fast as excavated, was conveyed in handbarrows made of cracker boxes or half barrels to the mouth, where it was emptied into bags, which were afterwarde used on the top of the breastworks. In this manner no betraying accumulation of earth took

VENTILATION AND LIGHTING OF THE

, TUNNEL. The ventilation of the tunnel was most ingeniously effected. Just within our exterior line of works a shaft was sunk to the side of the tunnel, at its junction with which a fire-place was built, with a grating opening into the gallery. One end of a series of tubes made of pine boards was inserted through the earth into this fireplace, where as the air became rarified and ascended, it created a "suction," or lary. As fast as the tunnel progressed additional tubing was jointed on, and followalong the line. The lighting of the tun-nel was effected simply by placing candles or lauterns along the walls at a distance of about twenty feet apart. At length the end was reached, the triingulation was abundantly verified in the noises overhead. The nailing of timber and planks could be distinctly heard, and left no doubt that the men were directly beneath the Rebel fort. The enemy were evidently making a flooring for their artillery. As near y as could be ascertained, the distance from the tunnel to the fort was twenty feet.

THE MINE. After it was sufficiently evident that a point directly underneath the fort was reached the construction of the mine was commenced. The angle of the fort protained under each side. It was the intention to make the mine consist of eight galleries, so that the entire length of the fort might be blown up, in place of one spot. Prelimienry experiments were made Col. Pleasants with cartridges of pow-ually secured by distributing the powder instead of putting it in a bulk. In the latter case the explosion resulted in a deep and broad crater; in the former in a wide No feature of the seige of Petersburg chasm. Where the cartridges—his minas been more interesting and no under-interesting and no underare satisfied that a considerable number of has been more interesting and no under lature magazines—were not disconnected taking more important than the construction of the delegates to that Convention from Mistaking more important than the construction of the mine under the rebel fortification was to find vent at the first hole. Hence So extensive has been this work, he resorted to packing between the magazines, or as it is technically known, "tamping."

are eight in number-four in either branch gallery. In some cases they are built in mines, and again right across the tunnel. They are two by two, and the explosion will result in craters, tangent to or intersecting each other.

THE TUBES,

The explosion of the magazines will be effected through tubes of pine wood six inches square, half filled with powder. These run along the bottom of the tunnel, and enter the magazine through openings The expedient of a mine originated made for them. Between each pair of with Lieutenant Colonel Pleasants, of the magazines and over the tubing is the 'tamping' of sand bags and logs.

THE FUSIE. The tubes extended only one hundred feet from the mine, thence they are connected with the mouth of the tunnel by fuses, the regular " sure fire," coulmining fuses of Pennsylvania being procured specially for the purpose.

CHARGING THE MINE. The mine was charged to-day. The quantity of powder used was six tons! Pause, and think of it. Six tons! twelve thousand pounds. Imagine eight dry goods boxes (the magazines resemble them in size and shape) filled with powder, and you will have an idea of the mine. What a terrific spectacle is in store for us.

· The Union League and the War. [From the Philadelphia North American.] The Union League of this city has again illustrated its support of the Government and the war by putting another regiment in the field, which is the fifth raised by the exertions of the members of the League within the past twelve months. This last regiment was recruited in ten days, in response to the call for hundred day men, and is commanded by Colonel Harmanus Neff, and a member of the League. It received marching orders and left the city yesterday to report to General Wallace, in Baltimore.

The fourth Union League regiment has been in all the battles of Grant's army, commencing with Spottsylvania, and the casualities in it, exceeding three hundered, attest its hard service and gallantry.

of the League, which is the working body in this business, contemplate the immediate raising of a sixth regiment for the war, a considerable fund being already subscribed for the purpose. If the League had done the country no other service than securing the enlistment of so many thousands of soldiers, it would have justified its title, and well merited the grateful respect of all loyal people.

After having played on the Plano of Messrs. Knabe & Co., it is impossible not to bear testimony to their qualities, which have acquired for them the eminent reputation which they enjoy. The Planos of their manufacture, on which I have played, are exceedingly remarkable for their qualities. The bars is powerful without harshness, and the upper notes sweet, clear and harmoniously mellow, (chrystaline,) and I do not healtate to express in regard to these instruments my entire satisfaction, and to declare that they are equal if not morror to the best manufactured in Europe or Hats, Caps & Furnishing Goods, If not superior to the best manufactured in Europe or this country by the most celebrated makers.
